Brad Brummett and Mark Worthen have created a wiki for C&P examiners. From Mark:

"To join, you first need to create an account with WikiSpaces, the program we are using to create and maintain the wiki. Go to:

<http://cpexaminers.wikispaces.com>

click on the "Join" link on the upper right, then click on "create an account." (Please see the information below to help you decide which email address to use to create your account).

When it asks, "Make a wiki?" leave it checked "no."

On the next page, if you used your VA email address to create your account with Wikispaces you do not have to enter a comment. Simply click the "Request Membership" button.

If you used a non-VA email address, please type your name in the Comment box and tell us how we can confirm that you are a licensed mental health professional. For example, you could:

- Provide a link to your website
- Provide a link to your listing on PsychologyToday.com or similar therapist directory
- Provide your VA email address
- Provide your private practice street address

For example, if you provide a link to your website, we will use the contact information on your website to either confirm your email address directly (if you list it on your website) or we will use a contact form or other contact method listed on your website to contact you and confirm your email address.

If you are a VBA professional, it's probably best to use your VA email address but if you would rather not do that, join with another email address and explain your situation in the Comment box.

Be sure to confirm your email address by clicking on the link in the email that Wikispaces will send you after you submit your request to join the wiki.

You will receive a confirmation email once you have been approved as a Member of the wiki. From that point on, you can read and contribute to the wiki. Instructions on how to contribute are on the wiki itself or accessible via the "Help" menu."

Gina Morris This web site is unbelievable. VA C&P examers for PTSD conspire against Veterans for compensation for disabilities of PTSD.
